

Making Images Display in Gmail and other Web-based Email

Issue: You receive emails with images embedded in the message of the email. But the images are not displayed, only a small square box where the image should be.

Solution: A setting needs changed in Internet Explorer to allow image content to be displayed.

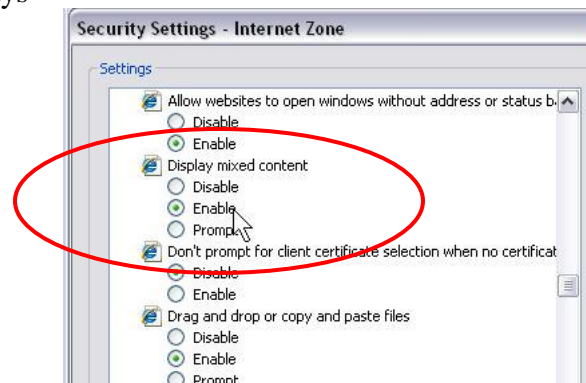

Step 1. – While in Internet Explorer, go to Tools, then Internet Options

Step 2. – In Internet Options, select the Security Tab

Then the “Custom Level” button ----->>>

Then scroll down selections to where it says
“Display Mixed Content”
And change the setting to “Enable”

After change, click OK. You must then close your IE browser and re-open for settings to take effect. Re-try you emails and the images should display within the message.
